tried a forward pass, but the Harvard end was buried under a mass of Crimson opponents, and Harvard had regained the ball on downs. Mahan immediately punted out of danger.

SENSATIONAL STRATEGY SUCCESSFULLY WORKS

Following a series of rushes and punts, Harvard intercepted a forward pass and started their final march for a touchdown from their own thirty-eight-yard line. Within twelve yards of the Harvard goal line, there was injected into the game the most spectacular and sensational piece of football strategy ever seen on an eastern gridiron.

Just as the teams were lining up, Captain Bricker, operated upon for appendicitis early in October, entered the game. The Crimson leader replaced Bricker at full back and apparently prepared to attempt a field goal.

The Yale line and secondary defense spread out to block the kick. It was but another bit of Crimson generalship, however, for Bricker, standing for back, was hit by a tackle from the Yale line, and the ball was kicked into the hands of Harvard.

Again the Harvard leader prepared, apparently to kick a field goal, while a Harvard pass brought the fifth and final touchdown of the game. Bricker, then closed his football career at Harvard by kicking an easy goal, and trotted off the field amid a tumult of cheering.

For Yale, Leggett's running, Knowles' line plunging, Wilson's, Talbot's and Betts' defensive work were bright spots. Mahan and Hardwick were the Harvard stars from an individual standpoint, but it was a real football team that Coach Houghton sent into Yale bowl to help in the dedication of the new football stadium.

SIMMS WILL NOT START IN GAME FOR GENERALS

Coach Elcock Decides That Player's Injuries Are Too Severe to Permit His Getting Into Action.

PLANS SWEEPING ATTACK

New Formations to Be Used Against North Carolina Aggies in Battle at Norfolk Thursday—W. &amp; L. Backfield Strong.

LEXINGTON, VA., November 21.—Washington and Lee will enter the clash with North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical under a slight handicap. Left End Cy Simms will not start the game. Coach Elcock having decided that his injuries will not permit Seelye will replace the injured end, while Jimmie Izzard, who has been substitute line man, will start at right end.

In the back field Buck Sweetland will probably start at right half back with Young at left half back. Bucherling at full and Donahue at quarter.

The Generals will make their final preparations at Virginia Beach, coming into Norfolk just before the battle Thanksgiving. "Washington" and Lee will not be in perfect trim for the conflict, but reports from A. and M. indicate that the Aggies will be battered slightly, too.

There will be no more scrimmaging before the game. Coach Elcock will depend on sweeping attack to carry the Generals on to a fifth victory, with Bucherling and Sweetland in the back field, there will be a good deal of live plunging, while Young and Donahue's speed will provide plays that require swiftness of foot.

The finishing touches to the offense will be made by Coach Keedy, of Lexington, who will be in charge of the line.

Although Washington and Lee is without "Fats" Miller, it is just as strong defensively as last year. Shultz and Miller, the giant tackles, will appear again against the Aggies, while Seary and Dingwall will battle at center. Pierotti, at center, is a wonder.

The back field is stronger, offensive, than in 1913, but weaker on defense. Young, whose long spiral punts held the Aggies in check until the final period, will do the punting this year.

AGGIES IN SHAPE FOR WASHINGTON AND LEE

RALEIGH, N. C., November 21.—Preparations for the game of Thanksgiving have been going on with increased interest the past few days. There only remain two more days in which to practice on the home grounds, and the coaches are determined to make the best of the remaining time. The first team has been put through some fast and hard scrimmaging with the scrubs. Coach Houghton is taking no chances on his first string backfield men being hurt in the scrimmage. This first string, composed of Van Brocklin, Riddick, Townsend and Tenny, have not taken part in the scrimmage this week, they only have been going through signal drills and other forms of light practice.

Yesterday the men were unable to go through any outdoor practice on account of the heavy snowfall. Every night the coaches have been going through series of blackboard drills on the various plays with the team.

Thursday night a big mass-meeting, attended by every student in college, was held in Pullen Hall. After practicing a few yells, talks were made by Coach Root, Leverage and some of the football players. Much spirit and enthusiasm was aroused, and the majority of the men present expressed their intention of going to Norfolk and seeing the Aggies triumph over the Generals.

The Agricultural and Mechanical squad will leave for Norfolk Tuesday night, and will stop over at some town on the way Wednesday, where they will hold their last signal practice.

Illinois Wins Champlosiph.

MADISON, WIS., November 21.—The powerful Illinois eleven won the Western conference championship here today, by taking the final game from the University of Wisconsin, 21 to 0.

Illinois made three touchdowns and one field goal. Wisconsin made one touchdown and a safety. The Wisconsin line could not resist the fierce Illinois plunges and, with the victory brilliant backfield, the Cardinals had little chance.

ENGAGE IN MANY OCCUPATIONS

Fathers of Boys Follow Sixteen Professions—Two Farmers Represented—Statistics of Regulars and Subs Composing the Squad.

CHAPEL HILL, November 21.—Football warriors are intensely human. This statement is ventured with due deference to the common interpretation placed upon the mole-skin wearers in college athletics, the professions of the Carolina team are a sort of rugged spectrum of humanity, void of finer sentiments and heartless cruelty.

This representation might partially picture the rugged or professional football player of former days. That day has passed in North Carolina, and of all South Atlantic proportions is working his way through college by the dint of hard labor, and another is toiling during the spare hours embraced between football duties and studies.

The oldest member of the picked twenty-three is twenty-four; the youngest is seventeen. The heaviest is 222 pounds; the lightest 116. The tallest player is 6 feet 2 inches; the lowest in height is 5 feet 7 inches.

The "back-to-the-lander" call will find no resourceful recruiting ground in the realm of football. The equal distribution between industrial and professional cuttings which was so evenly noted in the cases of their fathers, will receive a severe jolt by the second generation. The drift is decidedly toward the fascination of the professional line. Statistics of players:

CAROLINA ELEVEN HOLDS WORK-OUT IN THE GYM

Frozen Over and Crusty Condition of Playing Field Keeps All But Chosen Few Indoors.

REHEARSE TRICK PLAYS

Two Squads Also Stage Signal Drill Practice—Bridges Takes Charge of First Team—Homewood and Cowell Joins Comrades.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., November 21.—Upsetting the program which it proposed to execute to-day in the form of a final rough-and-tumble mix-up, Carolina's cleat-footed warriors abandoned the idea of outdoor practice. The frozen over, crusty condition of the gridiron was responsible factor for the squad seeking the warmth and shelter of the gymnasium. A chosen few punters and drop-kickers alone ventured to the athletic field.

The narrow confines of the interior of the upper floor of the gymnasium was the scene of two teams in action. Signal drills and trick plays were rehearsed, as on yesterday. Roy Bridges, who will officiate at quarter in the Virginia game, was running the first team. Roy Homewood, right end, who has been absent from the squad at intervals during the week, joined the lusty bunch of mole-skin wearers today.

Henry Foust was holding down the berth of right tackle, his competitor, Archie Gay, operating with the second string aggregation. This position is still doubtful, and both players will perform service in the Virginia contest. Foust is recognized for long range punting, and Gay's defensive tackling is fair.

The berth of full back is being shared between John Parker and Ed Reid, both of whom have individual recommendations for the job. As a ground gainer, Parker ranks first with his teammates. He has netted Carolina nine touchdowns during the season, though he has been absent from the line-up time and again.

ARMY WINDS UP HOME SEASON BY WINNING GAME

WEST POINT, N. Y., November 21.—The Army eleven wound up its home season to-day with a 13 to 6 victory over Springfield Training School. The gridiron was a quagmire and this fact detracted no little interest from the game. The army coach used the varsity to mop up, fearing to risk injury at this time.

In the second quarter a forward pass, punted to Neyland, put the ball on the visitor's five-yard mark, and Van Allen went over. Parker blocked a punt, Prickett, falling on the ball, Coffin took it over the line in the next play and Benedict kicked goal.

Shabinger, for Springfield, electrified the crowd in the last quarter by intercepting a pass and running eighty yards for a touchdown. The try for goal failed.

NAVY'S ALLOTMENT OF BOXES FOR BIG GAME

President Wilson Will Occupy Number 69 During First Half of Game. Secretary Daniels in 67.

CABINET OFFICIALS TO ATTEND

Middy Contingent Assigned to North-side Stand at Franklin Field—Foreign Diplomats, Congressmen and Others Provided For.

ANNAPOLIS, MD., November 21.—The Navy Athletic Association announced the allotment of boxes in the north stand of Franklin Field, which will be the Navy side of the field.

President Wilson, who has signified his intention of attending the game, will occupy box No. 69. Vice-President Marshall and party will be on one side of the President, occupying box 68, and next the Vice-President will be Secretary of the Navy Daniels and party.

On the other side of the President will be the superintendent of Naval Academy, Captain William F. Fulham, and party in box No. 20. Boxes Nos. 71 and 72, respectively, will be occupied by the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Charles H. Harrah, of Midvale, Pa., and the commander of midshipmen, Captain G. H. Burrage, and party. The rest of the navy boxes have been placed at the disposal of other Cabinet officials, members of Congress and officers high in naval councils.

President Wilson, following the long-established custom, will witness the first half of the game from the navy side of the field and between the halves he and his official party will cross the gridiron and watch the final stages of the battle from a box in the Army stands.

List of boxholders.

STATISTICS OF THE VIRGINIA ELEVEN

Football Stars Expected to Uphold the Honor of the Old Dominion.

PRACTICALLY A NEW TEAM

Backfield, However, Composed of Veterans, and Rated the Best in the South.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., November 21.—Having traveled 1,000 miles to yank the "varsity" out of Vanderbilt and just back from the suburbs of old Philadelphia where it cut quite a wide swath in the contest with the Little Quakers, Virginia's football eleven is ready to march on to Richmond, where, on "Turkey Day," an effort will be made to kill the "car" out of Carolina.

While the Orange and Blue coaches think they have a line on Carolina, it is possible, of course, that the dope may be upped, but the Virginia backfield rates hold a different view of the situation, and are counting on another victory for the Old Dominion with a line of youngsters, practically every member being a freshman, but with a back field the equal, perhaps, of any ever turned out at the old institution. It is certainly the fastest combination the gridiron has ever seen. Ed Finlay, of Chattanooga, a star end in his day, is authority for this statement. He made the statement the week previous to the Vanderbilt game.

A few words regarding the forwards. George Nash, Anderson, a former Virginia Polytechnic Institute star, started in fact. It worried the coaches all summer, to even think of the task ahead of them, the gaps left vacant by the departure of such players as "Heavy" Carter, Woolfolk, Jett, Rodin and Malden. The incoming class, furnished very little material, and the coaches had to turn to the scrubs of last fall to fill the gaping holes.

After various experiments, the season started off with Evans, the former Virginia Polytechnic Institute star, at center, the Coleman brothers, guards, Barker and Moore as tackles, and Gillett, still white on the wings—all students of last season.

An urgent call for new material among the student body brought out Ward, a husky line, inside tackle, lucky Golden, a four year engineering student who had had no experience on the gridiron, still white on the wings, and Stuart, a Rhodes scholar for the past three years, and George Nash, Anderson, a former pupil at Woodberry Forest, a former player at Orange, Va. One or more from this year will start the game against the Carolinians when the referee blows his whistle at Broad Street Park next Thursday.

Players Are From Seven States.
A glance at the personnel of the Virginia squad will show that the players come from seven States—Virginia, Georgia, California, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois and Maryland. Only one of the players is serving his fourth year on the eleven—"Bobby" Gooch, quarterback, who has no equal in his position in the entire South. Gooch won the Rhodes scholarship from Virginia in October of last year, but deferred his trip to Oxford on account of the European war.

Improving. Next Thursday's game will be for good distances. He has been under the weather the past week, but is improving. Gooch's game will be a baring injury, he will be much in the line of play with his sweeping, zig-zag runs. He can shine when he plays with rare accuracy in the forward pass plays, too, and can also boot the ball for good distances. He has cool head, and reels off the plays with a rapidity that keeps the opposing team guessing.

Two players are serving their third year on the team—Captain "Buck" Mayer, of Norfolk, left half back, and Gillette, right end. White, left end, is the other varsity man who was on last year's squad. This leaves seven first-year men to face North Carolina next Thursday—practically a new team, but a lightning one.

The players, with their positions, place of residence, number of years on the team, age, weight and height are given below:

James L. White, left end, halls from Macon, Ga., and is playing his second year on the team. He has twenty-one years of age, weighs 150 pounds, is five feet nine inches tall. He is a star in the game of the baseball and basketball, and has won his letter in both sports. He has won his letter in three branches of sport. He received
